Dialog and BCR Present Free Knowledge Management Seminar

(March 2000 Action for Libraries newsletter)

The Dialog Corporation and BCR are presenting a free seminar, "Knowledge Management The Future is Now" on April 28 at BCR's Aurora, Colorado, offices.

The half-day, complimentary session will be presented twice to ensure room is available for all who want to attend. The morning session will begin with registration and continental breakfast from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., and the session itself begins at 9 a.m. The afternoon session will start at 1 p.m; registration and lunch will begin at 12:15 p.m.

Ulla de Stricker, president of the Special Libraries Association's Toronto Chapter and a Canadian authority on the information industry, will be the main speaker. A frequent conference speaker and journal contributor, de Stricker focuses her consulting practice on strategic and tactical planning. Paul Colluci, vice president and general manager of The Dialog Corporation, will speak about Enterprisewide Solutions, and BCR's Jim Hensinger will open each session.

Dialog will set up interactive exhibits for those attending. Dialog's new products Dialog@Site, DialogWeb, Profound, KWorking, PowerPortals and DialogSelect will be featured.

Space is limited, so please register early. Sign up using BCR's online workshop registration form, fax the registration form on the Dialog flier to BCR's Stephanie Jauregui at (303) 751-9787 or contact her at sjauregu@bcr.org.
